Founders face tough tradeoffs

Three options — each with a meaningful cost

OPTION A

Raise debt

Interest rates of 15–20% that compound regardless of revenue cycles

15–20%

OPTION B

Raise equity

Permanent dilution of ownership that cannot be undone

Dilution

OPTION C

Slow growth

Preserve cash at the expense of market opportunity and momentum

Stagnation

THE SOUQ MODEL

No debt. No dilution.

We fund inventory purchases and services in exchange for a share of gross profits — paid only as sales are completed.

Sharia-compliant — profit share aligns with when revenue actually happens, not a fixed schedule.

HOW IT WORKS

REQUEST

Business requests financing for inventory or services

UNDERWRITE

Terms tailored to business cash flow and profitability

REPAY

Profit share paid as sales complete — no fixed schedule

Underwriting criteria

Each request individually underwritten,
limited to 2–3 months of sales volume

$500K+

Annual sales

Six months of consistent history required

35%+

Gross profit margin

Minimum threshold across product lines

<30%

Ad spend

Of expenses and of sales attribution

Zero

Existing debt

Or actively transitioning out of debt

ECONOMICS

Sample Partner Economics

Souq receives a 10% profit share on its 80% allocated contribution. Paid as sales are completed — no fixed repayment term.

PRODUCT	QTY	COST/UNIT	RETAIL	GROSS PROFIT	SOUQ SHARE

MARKET CONTEXT

Macro environment

Q1 2026 signals show a mixed but navigable landscape — our portfolio is structurally positioned to absorb the headwinds.

Q1 2026

HEADWIND

Inflation & energy costs rising

Input costs and energy prices continue to trend upward, compressing margins for consumer-facing businesses.

RESILIENT

Consumer purchasing holding steady

Despite macro pressure, consumer demand within our portfolio verticals has not materially declined — revenue activity remains stable.

STABLE

SE Asia shipping rates unaffected

Freight and logistics rates from Southeast Asia have not seen material disruption, preserving inventory cost structures for our portfolio companies.
